Name of the course: MA DEGREE IN ISLAMIC HISTORY

The detailed Scheme and Syllabus for the revised MA Degree in ISLAMIC HISTORY is given below. This Credit Semester System post graduate programme in ISLAMIC HISTORY has been modified according to the need of the fast changing academic scenario.

With the dawn of the 21st century, academic pursuit on the history and culture of the Islamic People has become more relevant than ever before. We will be convinced of this fact by simply passing our attention over the print media, the electronic media or the journals and books that are published world over. We cannot pass these media and publications without making a reference to matters related specifically with Islamic or Muslim. The relations that the Muslims keep within themselves and the outer world have become a matter of academic interest in all societies. The latest trends in the life of the Muslims and their thoughts are put to close observation more by the policy makers and diplomats than the community themselves. Presently the situation has reached a point in which political polarisations, social trends, reformist movements, attempts to gain values of modern education, democracy, gender equality, human rights etc. among the Muslims have become an academic matter discussed among all. Social scientists with a deep knowledge in the matters related with the Muslim society and culture are as imperative as good economist, political scientist, sociologist, anthropologist, philosopher etc. The subject with its vitality, the capability to deal with collective pluralism and as the means to provide with developing technical progress is the most essential one.

OBJECTIVES

The objective of the departments of Islamic History will be as follows

- To promote and develop Islamic History with an objective of Inclusive Growth.
- To create an academic knowledge of the Arab world so as to tap the economic opportunity there in a bilaterally beneficial mode.

Savage nations and tribes; Both Bedouins and sedentary people are innate- Bedouins are prior to sedentary people; Bedouins are closer to being good than sedentary people- more disposed to courage than sedentary people; Tribes held together by group feeling; Group feeling result's only from blood relationship or something corresponding to it; Purity of lineage is found only among the savage Arabs of the desert; How lineages become confused; Group feeling of a group can have a "house" and nobility in the basic sense and in reality; House" and nobility come to clients and followers; The goal to which group feeling leads is royal authority; A nation that has been defeated and come under the rule of another nation will quickly perish; Arabs can obtain royal authority only by making use of some religious coloring- The Arabs are of all nations the one most remote from royal leadership (hijabah). The ministry of financial operations and taxation. The ministry of official correspondence and writing. The police. The admiralty); Taxation and the reason for low and high tax revenues; In the later years of dynasties, customs duties are levied; Commercial activity on the part of the ruler is harmful to his subjects and ruinous to the tax revenue; The ruler and his entourage are wealthy only in the middle period of the dynasty; Curtailment of the allowances given by the ruler implies curtailment of the tax revenue; Once senility has come upon a dynasty, it cannot be made to disappear; How disintegration befalls dynasties; The authority of the dynasty at first expands to its limit and then is narrowed down in successive stages, until the dynasty dissolves and disappears; How a new dynasty originates; A new dynasty gains domination over the ruling dynasty through perseverance, and not through sudden action; There is a large population at the end of dynasties, and pestilences and famines frequently occur then; Human civilization requires political leadership for its organization
